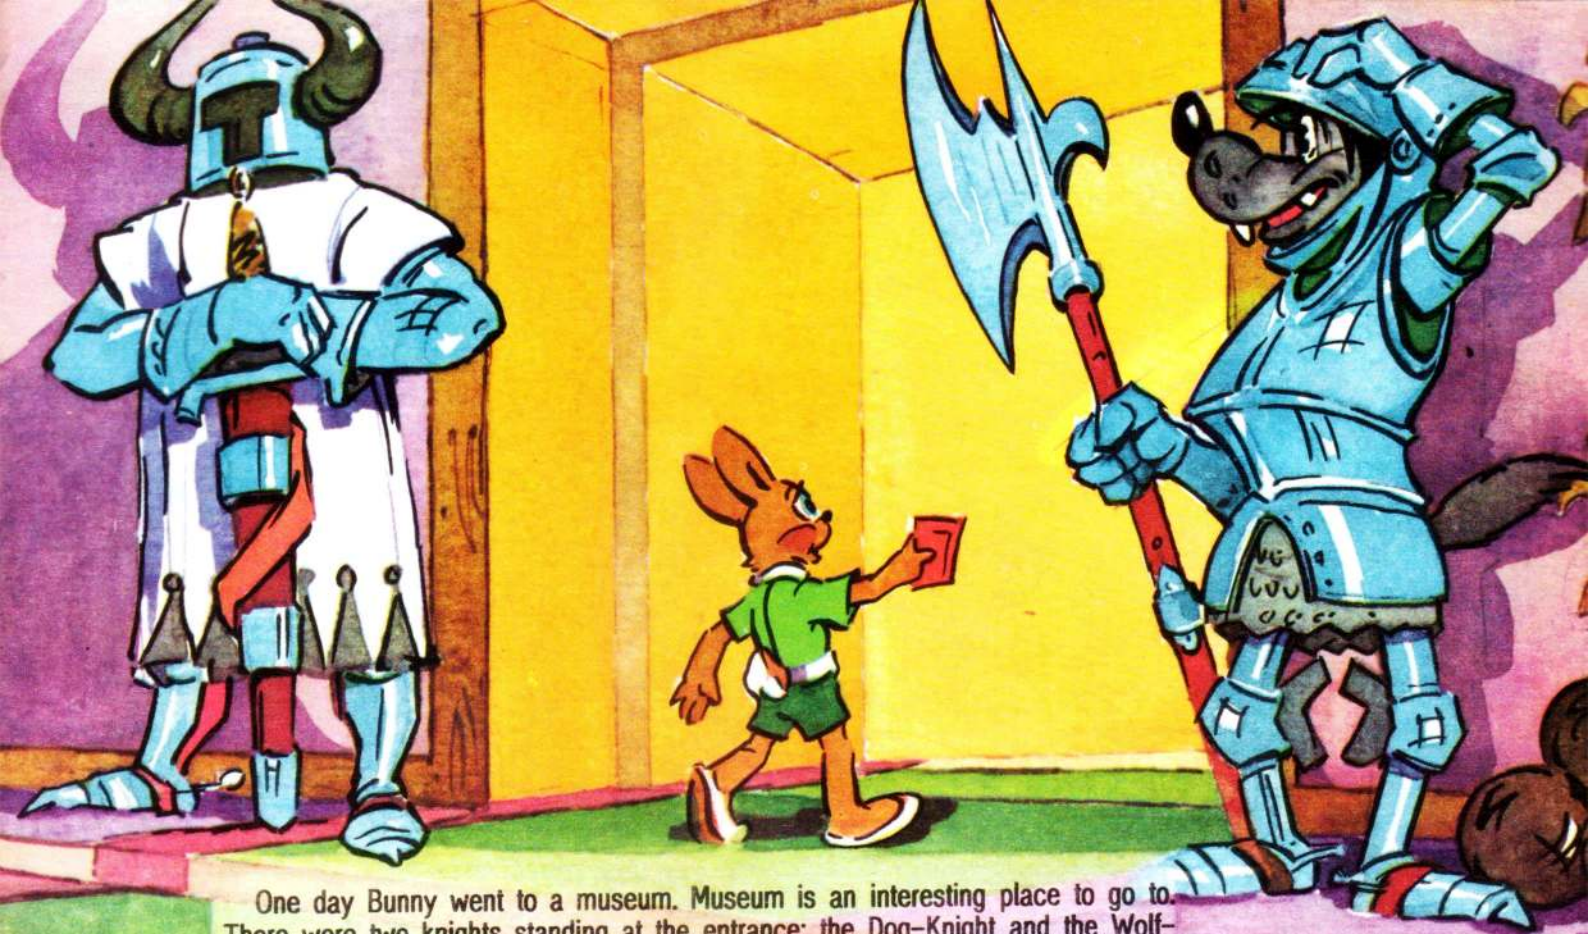
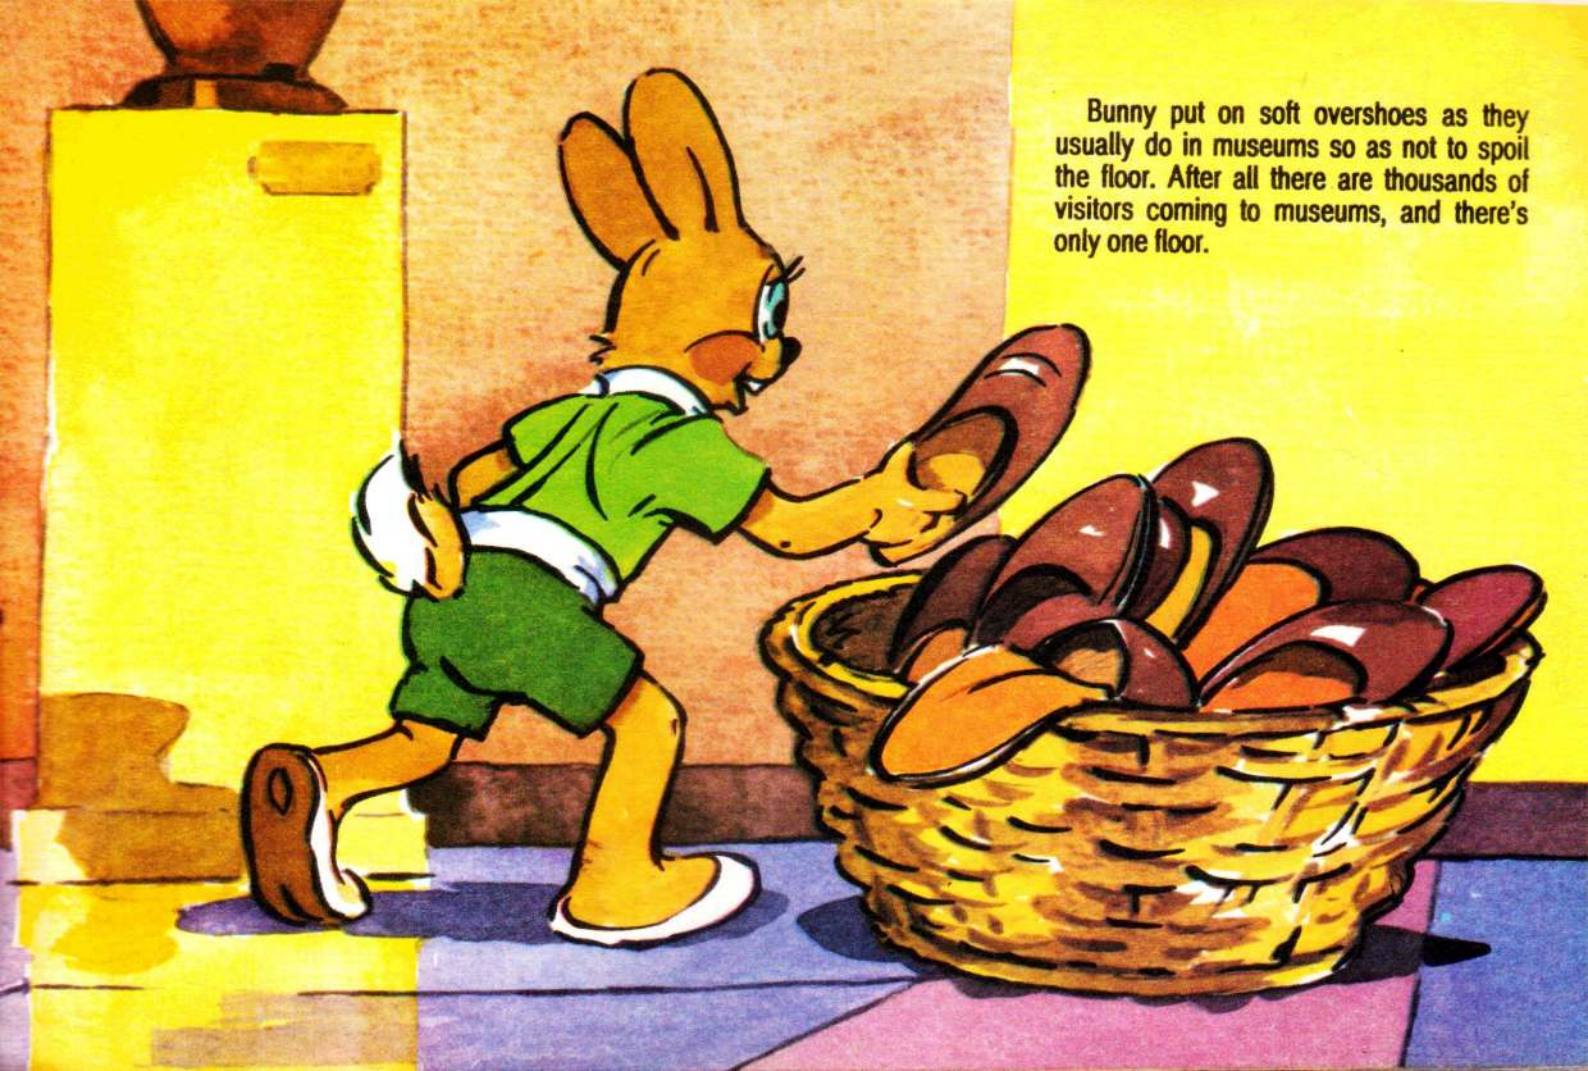
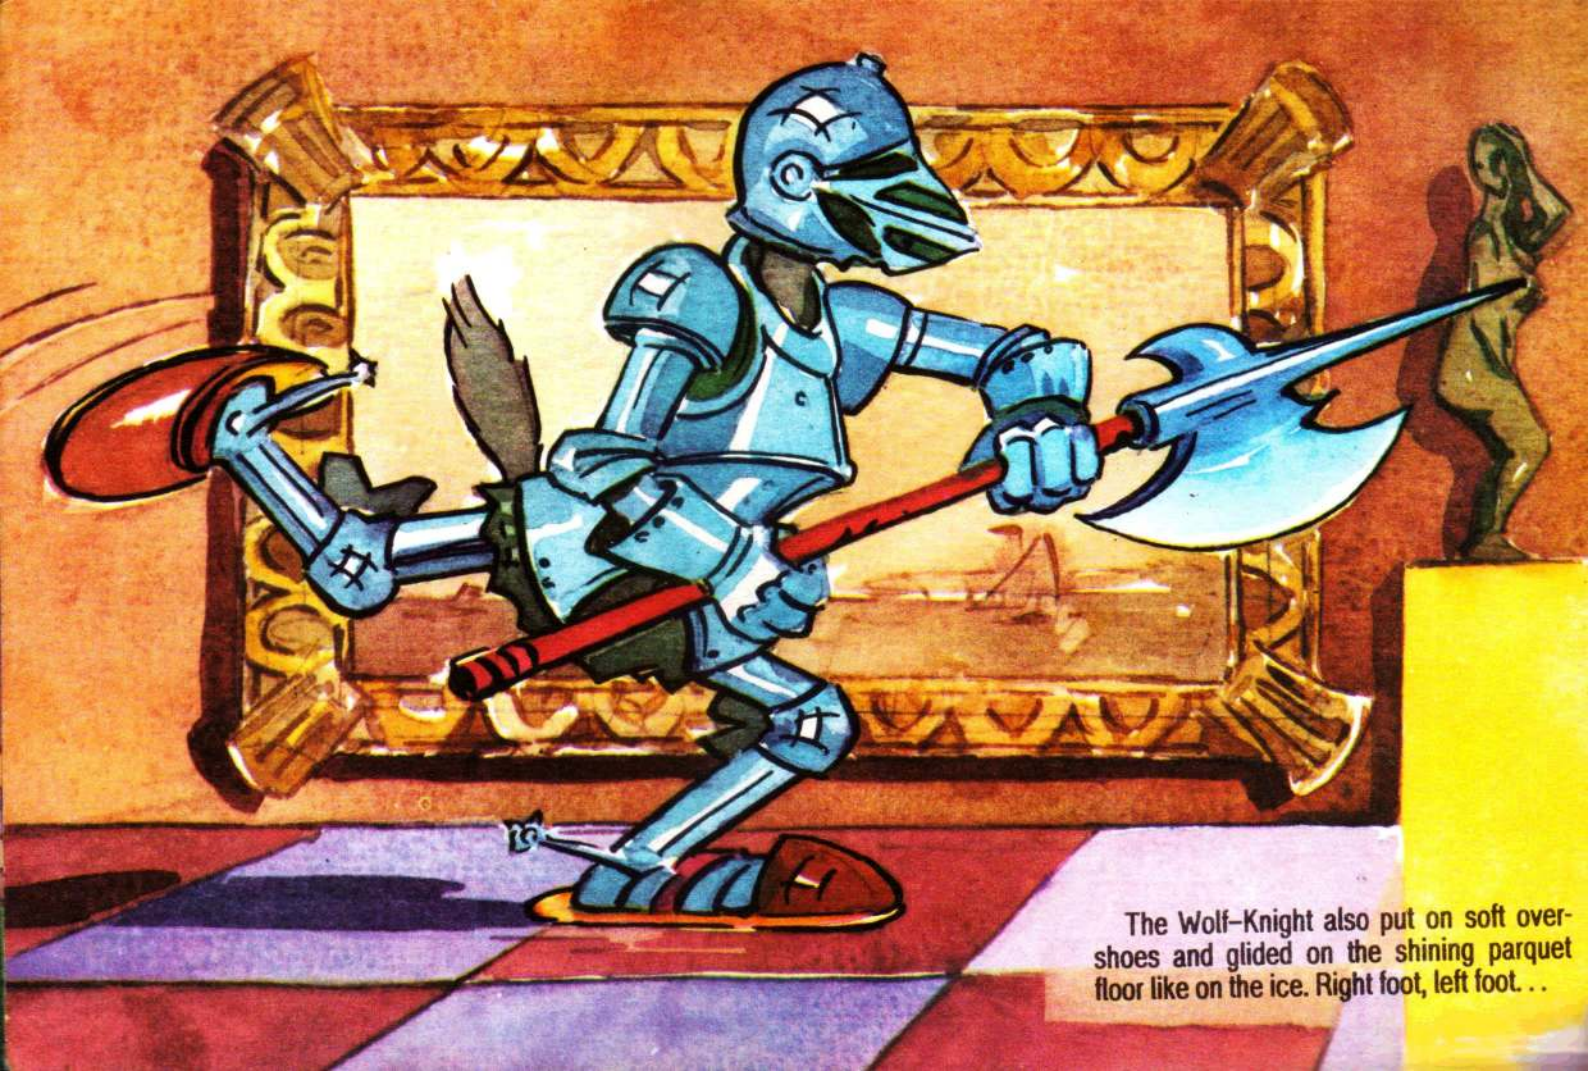
JUST YOU WAIT !
A FILMED STORY



One day Bunny went to a museum. Museum is an interesting place to go to. There were two knights standing at the entrance: the Dog-Knight and the Wolf-Knight.



Bunny put on soft overshoes as they usually do in museums so as not to spoil the floor. After all there are thousands of visitors coming to museums, and there's only one floor.



The Wolf-Knight also put on soft over-shoes and glided on the shining parquet floor like on the ice. Right foot, left foot. . .

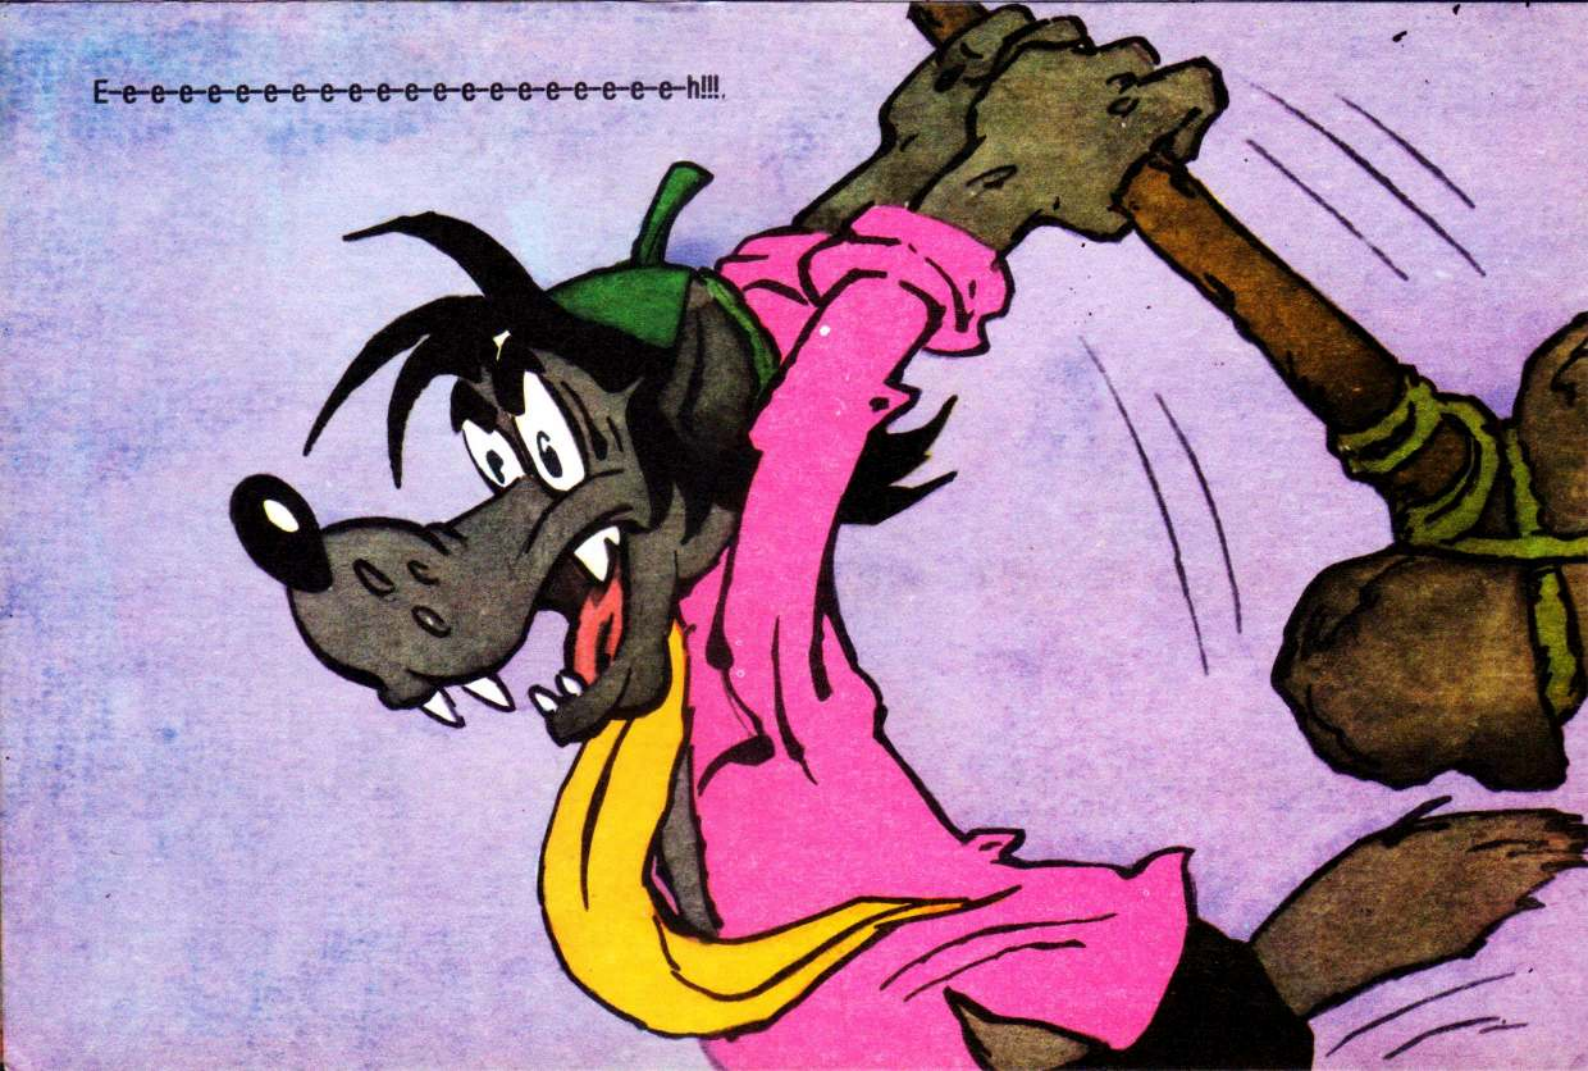
Bunny stopped before a model of "Primitive man". He was dressed in a skin and was holding a club to fight enemies.

Here's the enemy. He didn't manage to stop in time and prodded his spear right into the breast. . .

The club lowered on the Wolf's helmet with a big bang. So that he saw stars. "Just you wait, Bunny!"

Bunny hid in a deep antique vase.

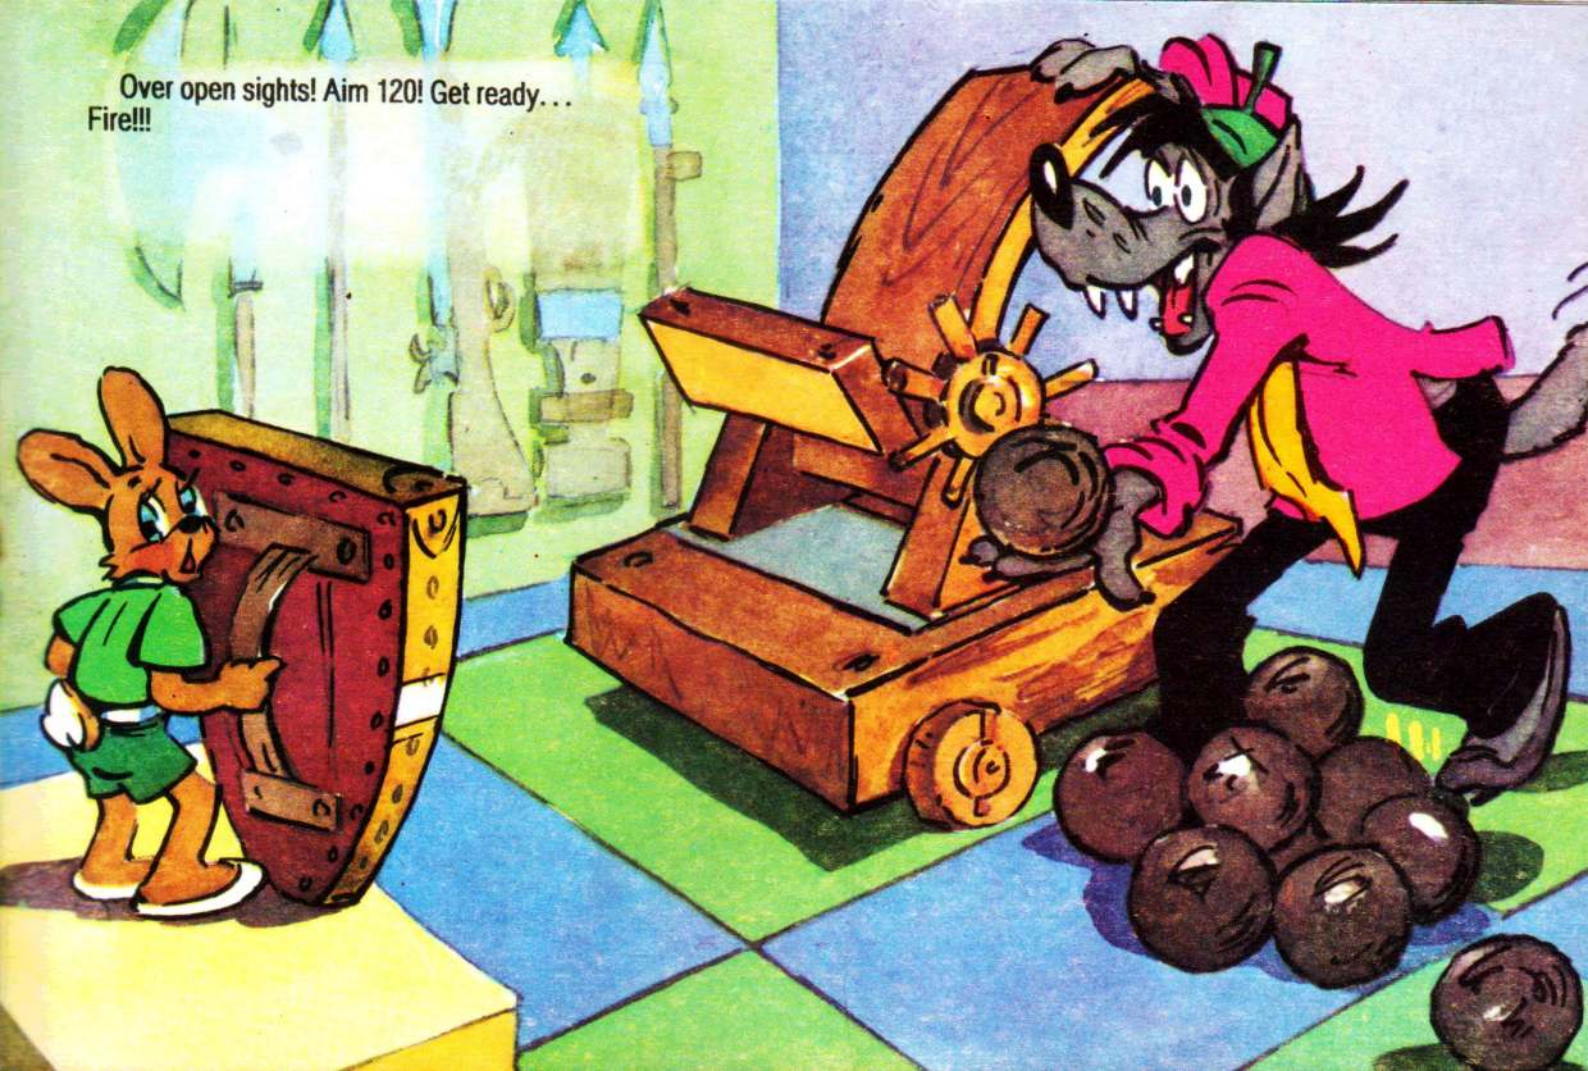
"It's all right," Wolf thought.
"Now I'm going to test this antique thing for strength."



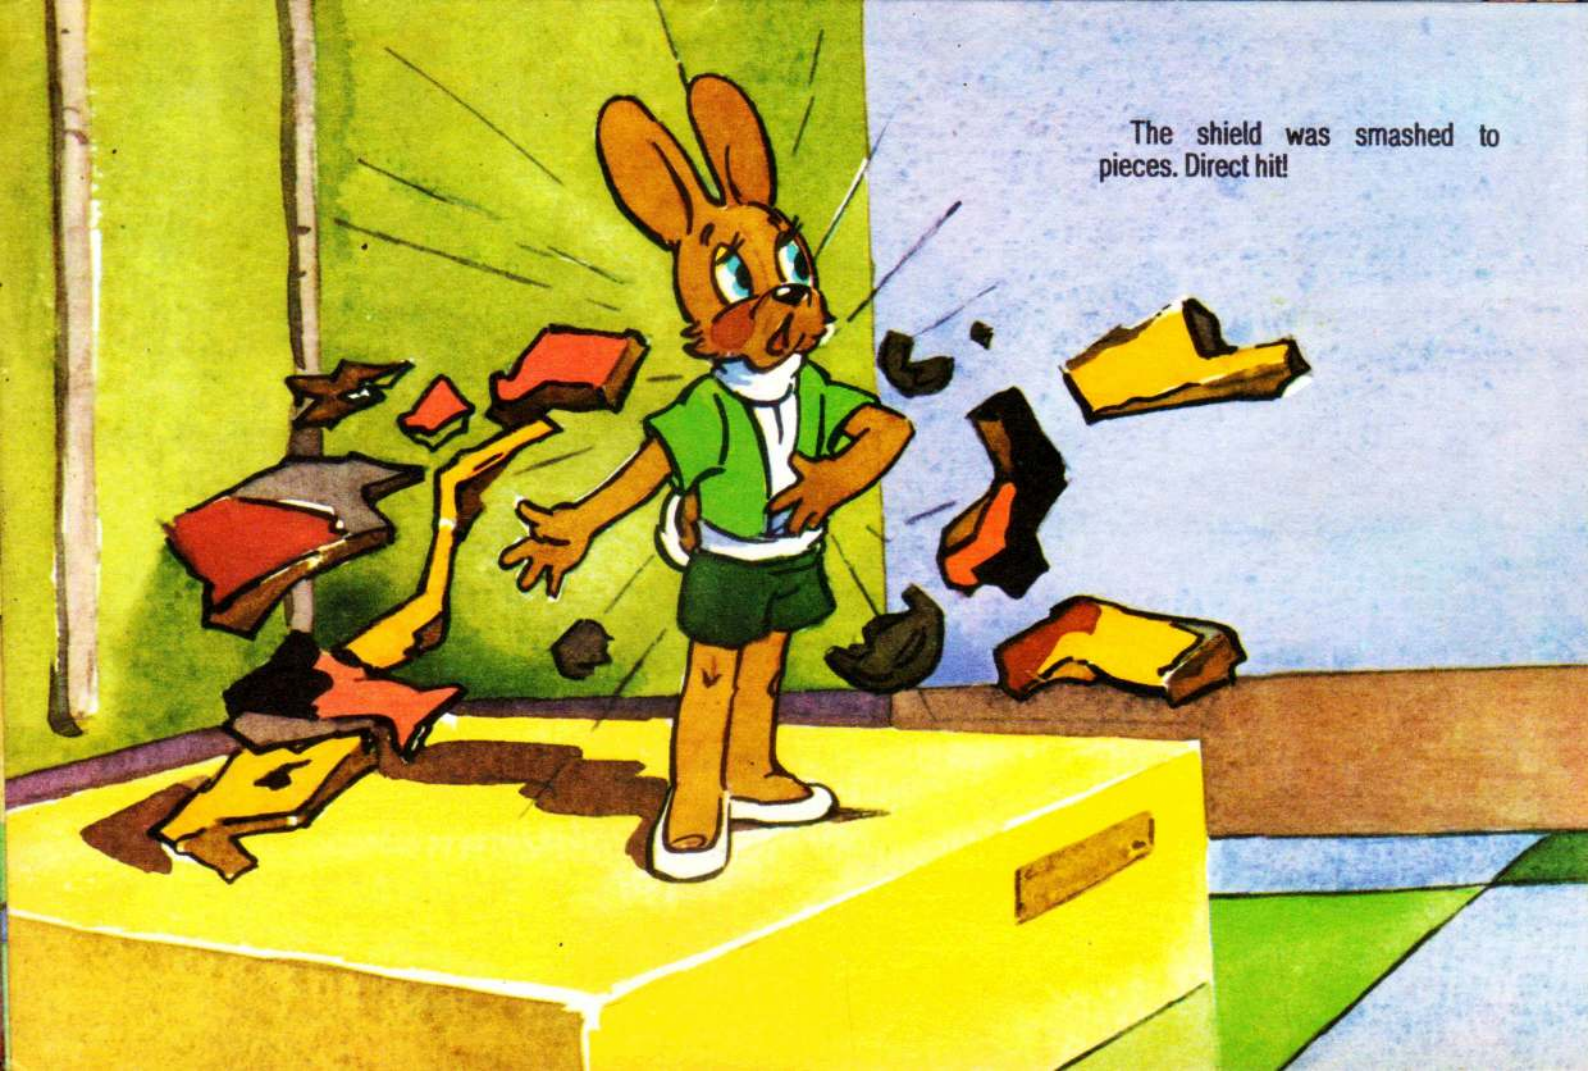
E-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-e-h!!!

From this heavy blow the vase turned into a pot. It was empty. No Bunny. Funny.

What's that? Who's that? What a nice shield with Rabbit's ears sticking out of it. I'll test it for strength now.

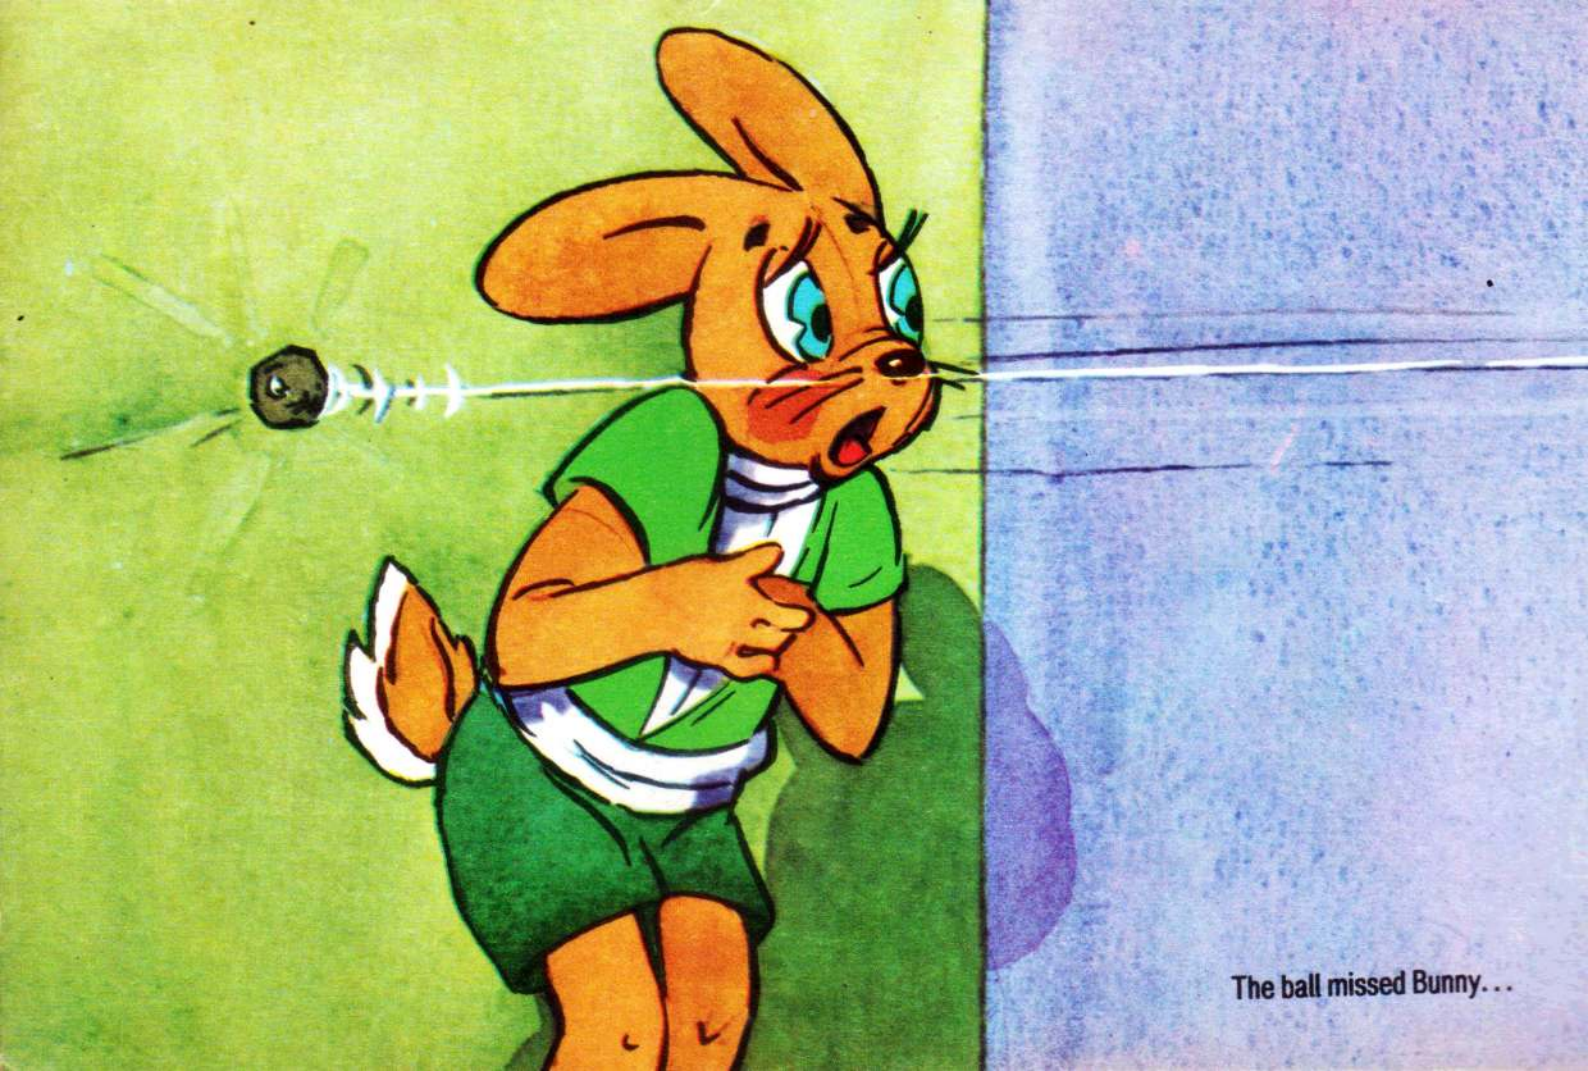


Over open sights! Aim 120! Get ready...
Fire!!!

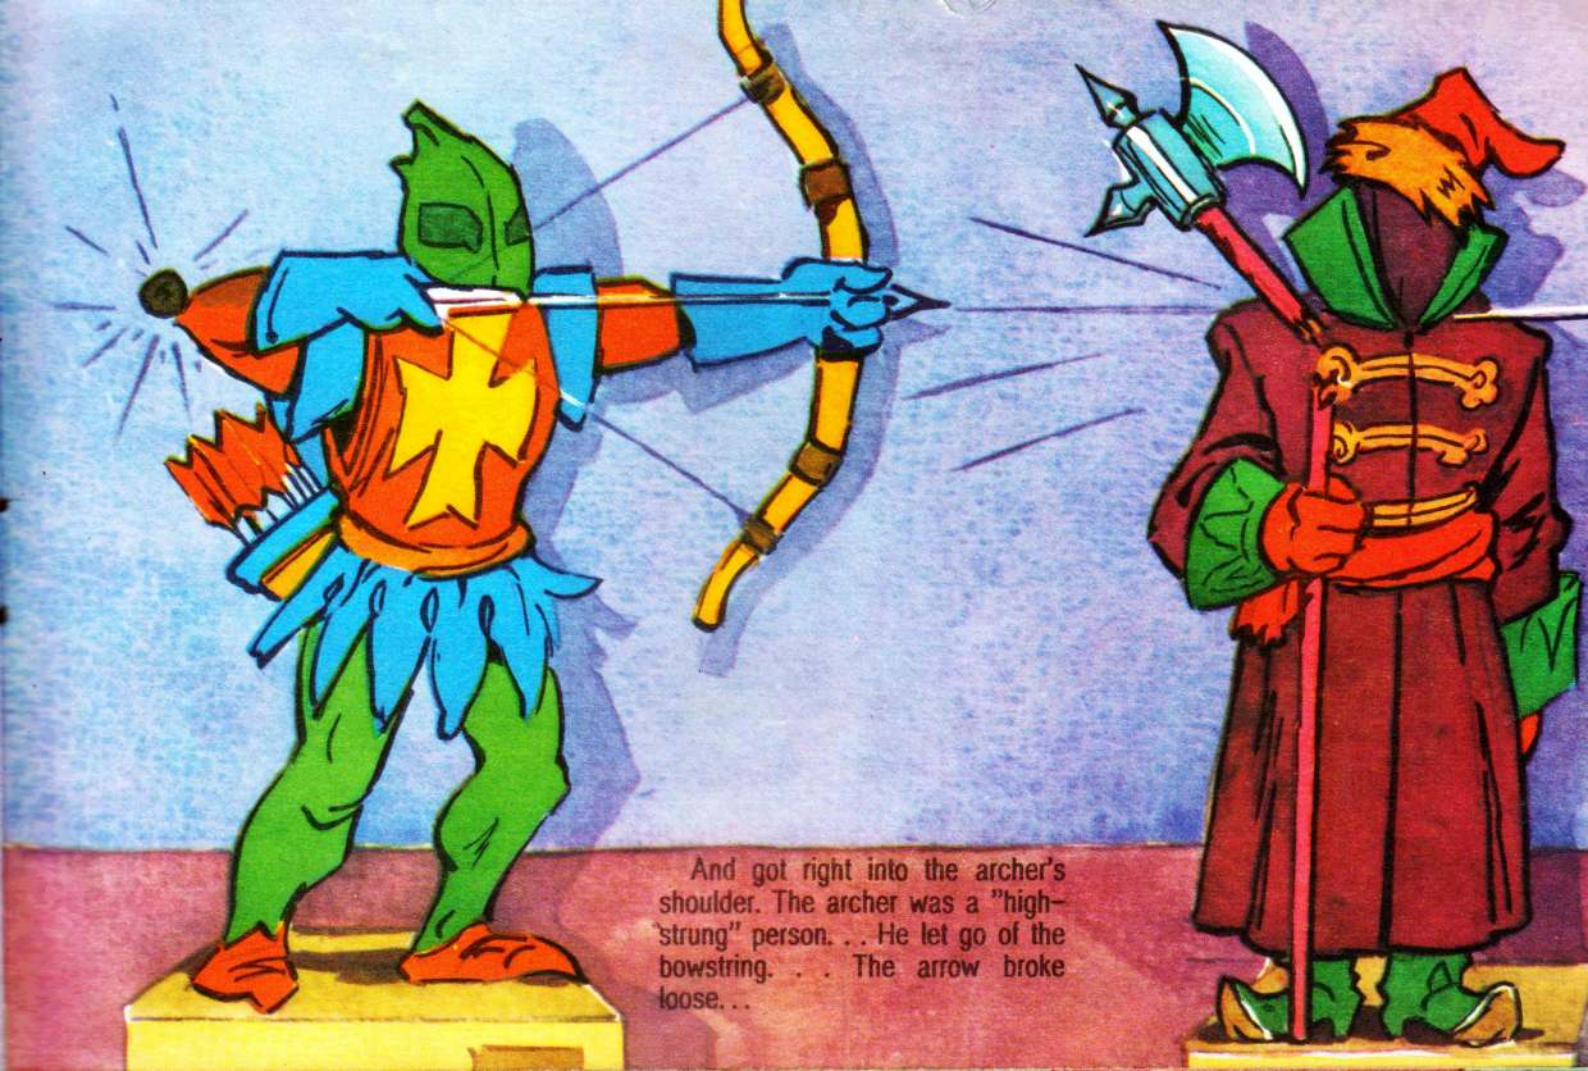


The shield was smashed to pieces. Direct hit!

"Now one of these balls is more than enough to finish you off, my dear!" Wolf laughed.



The ball missed Bunny...



And got right into the archer's shoulder. The archer was a "high-strung" person. . . He let go of the bowstring. . . The arrow broke loose. . .

НУ, ПОГОДИ!

На английском языке

Text by A. Kurlyandsky and A. Khait
Drawings by S. Rusakov
Translated by Natalia Perova

© All-Union Production-Creative Amalgation "Cine-centre", 1990

Printed in the USSR